

YSC Supports YOUNG Breast Cancer Survivors

BREAST CANCER IN YOUNG ADULTS IS DIFFERENT

- 13,000 young adults receive a breast cancer diagnosis every year.
- 250,000 people who were diagnosed before age 40 are living in the U.S. today
- They're often the youngest person in their oncologist's office and feel isolated among their peers.
- They face early menopause, infertility, and negative impacts to their sexual health and body image.
- Some are parenting young children while undergoing difficult treatments.
- Their experience is different. Their support needs to be, too.

YOUNG SURVIVAL COALITION (YSC)

Supports 15,000 survivors and their caregiver support networks every year.

Coordinates 176 in-person and virtual networking groups to connect survivors to their peers.

Provides live and on-demand education with medical experts about the issues unique to young survivors.

Hosts the largest conference just for young adults affected by breast cancer and provides financial assistance to expand equitable access.

YSC is the largest nonprofit dedicated exclusively to young adults diagnosed with breast cancer age 40 and under.

Connects the YSC community to mental health experts and resources designed for their unique experience.

Ensures no young adult faces breast cancer alone.

Help YSC provide support, education and connection to young adults affected by breast cancer.
