

BUILD A WALK FOR WATER TEAM!

On March 29, 2025, thousands of people will gather at Riverfront Park, pick up a bucket, fill it with water, and walk, so others don't have to.

Building a Walk team is a fun way to intentionally gather your friends, family, and colleagues. Together, you will unite around a common cause and make a global impact.

It's easy to start a team:

Step 1: Choose a name for your team—it can be creative, sentimental, or reflect your group's connection.

Step 2: Register your team at walkforwater.com/charleston.

Step 3: Invite others to join your team by posting on social media and hang your team's poster in your office, school, or church.

You don't have to wait until March to make an impact. Start growing and motivating your team today.

- Host a booth at your church, school, or work. Visit walkforwater.com/charleston to download resources for your booth.
- Regularly invite others to join to contribute to your team on social media or by email.
- Go to walkforwater.com/charleston and visit the team captain page to schedule a tour of Water Mission's Global Headquarters or request a speaker from Water Mission to lead a lunch and learn.

- Create a team challenge or plan an event to raise funds. This can include challenging your team to raise enough funds to bring safe water 20 people, hosting a chili cookoff, lemonade stand, or neighborhood cookout. Get creative!
- Sign up to serve by visiting the volunteer page on walkforwater.com/charleston
- Let your team know where to meet on Walk day and start walking together!

Start Your Team!

I lead a Walk for Water team each year because I believe Water Mission actually changes lives for the better every single day. Few organizations do that with such integrity and fidelity to mission. I am also compelled to help girls and women live healthy, free lives and without access to safe water, that is impossible.
